

THAT WAS THEN, THIS IS NOW

Opening Reception

Saturday, 13 May 2017, 6:30 - 8:30 pm

Sullivan+Strumpf Singapore

That Was Then, This Is Now addresses and explore notions of abstraction through works by five selected artists from the region in Sullivan+Strumpf Singapore's 2017 group exhibition which opens on 13 May.

That Was Then, This Is Now substantiates the progression of abstraction in the modern context, therein through its purity of form, colour and sense of space, offers its viewers a sensory experience and an intelligibility to the works. The show presents works by selected artists from the region, namely Jeremy Sharma, Irfan Hendrian, Faisal Habibi, Young-Rim Lee and Matthew Allen.

IMAGE: Turquoise Strip 2014, acrylic on wood, 110 x 122 cm, Young Rim Lee. Image courtesy of the Artist